

PhD student position in Hematology Laboratory
GIGA-I3 ULiège and CHU of Liège

Project title: Roles of the intestinal immunoendocrine axis in modulating inflammatory and immune responses after allogeneic stem cell transplantation.

Profile:

- Required diploma: MSc (or equivalent degree) in Biomedical Sciences, Biology, Biochemistry or Pharmacology
- Knowledge of scientific English
- Experience with experimental animal research or relevant experiment techniques in molecular biology is an asset.
- Candidate should be able to work independently and interact with multidisciplinary teams.

We offer:

A 1-year full-time position, beginning on January 1st, 2019.
Thereafter, possibility to apply for F.R.S.-FNRS Télévie Grant.

Application:

- One-page cover-letter describing your motivation and research interests
- Curriculum Vitae
- Copies of educational certificates

These documents must be sent to s.servais@chuliege.be before December 10.

Any questions related to the position can be directed to Sophie Servais (s.servais@chuliege.be or +32 4 284 41 37 or +32 4 366 72 01).

Selected candidates will be called for an interview.